

FREE SUICIDE PREVENTION TRAINING FOR CLINICIANS

NAMI Maine is pleased to offer free access to two CAMS-care online, self-paced training modules with registration available through September 30th, 2024.

CAMS (The Collaborative Assessment and Management of Suicidality) is a trusted, evidence-based suicide prevention resource. Suicide prevention authorities such as the Surgeon General recognize CAMS as an effective suicide prevention program.

The Foundational Video Course features Dr. David A. Jobes, creator of CAMS, showcasing CAMS in action through 12 sessions, emphasizing collaborative assessment and treatment for suicidal patients. This course covers suicide drivers, lethal means reduction, CAMS Stabilization and Treatment Plans, setbacks, and alternative techniques.

Participants will receive 3 CE credits for completing the Foundational Video Course, and the first 400 registrants will receive a hard copy of Managing Suicidal Risk, A Collaborative Approach, 3rd Edition by Dr. Jobes.

<https://namimaine.org/event/cams-care-preventing-suicide-foundational-video-course-2024/>

The CAMS-4Teens & Parents Video Course features Dr. David A. Jobes demonstrating the application of CAMS with adolescents and their parents, including how to involve parents in treatment, address suicidal ideation, and create a safe home environment. The course focuses on research, therapeutic relationships, and crisis management.
The Foundational Video Course is a prerequisite for this training.

Participants will receive 3 CE credits for completing the CAMS-4Teens & Parents Video Course.

<https://namimaine.org/event/cams-care-preventing-suicide-cams-4teens-parents-video-course-2024/>

Questions: Contact Julianne McLaughlin, Coordinator of Suicide Prevention of NAMI Maine, at mspp@namimaine.org or (800) 464-5767 x 2318

